The Relation between Science and Religion in Allama Iqbal's Work

Guest Lecture by Prof. Dr. Aziz Ali Najam

Vice Chancellor of Karakorum International University,
Gilgit, Northern Areas, Pakistan

Location: Geo-Campus Lankwitz
Malteserstr. 74-100, 12249 Berlin
Building G, Room G110

Time: Thursday, January 31st 2008, 16.15 hours

Prof. Dr. Aziz Ali Najam, vice chancellor of the Karakorum International University will lecture on the life and work of the great Pakistani national poet and philosopher Muhammad Iqbal (1877 -1938). Particularly, he will comment on Iqbal's reflections on the relationship between science and religion. Iqbal, who studied in Cambridge and Heidelberg and obtained his Ph.D. in philosophy from Ludwig-Maximilians-Universitaet in Munich, was an intimate adept of the philosophical traditions of the Orient and the Occident to which he gave equal importance in his reflections on the challenging relation between science and religion.

In addition, Prof. Dr. Aziz Ali Najam will give a short introduction to the Karakorum International University and its programs.
